THRILLING DRAMA OF THE SEA IS ENACTED

37 PERSONS ARE SAVED FROM OCEAN BY RESCUE SHIPS

WHITE FLYER LINER, SAN JUAN,
RAMMED BY STANDARD OIL TANKER

ACCIDENT TAKES PLACE IN A
DENSE FOG 50 MILES SOUTH OF SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco, Aug. 30.—(U.P.)—Strewed bits of wreckage tossing on the foam crested waves, with a low-hanging white fog serving as a shroud, today marked the spot where the steamer San Juan went down with at least 110 persons aboard.

(While two coast guard cutters searched the waters near Pigeon Point, 50 miles south of here, looking for survivors and bodies, the fear grew that perhaps 72 persons lost their lives.

San Francisco, Aug. 30.—(U.P.)—The passenger liner San Juan, bound from San Francisco to Los Angeles, collided with the oil tanker S. C. T. Dodd almost on the stroke of midnight and plunged to the bottom of the Pacific a few minutes later this morning.

The San Juan carried 65 passengers and a crew of 45.

Twenty-seven persons were rescued by the Dodd and ten by the lumber carrier Munami, first to answer SOS calls.

Fate of the remaining 73 is unknown.

The Dodd advised San Francisco radio stations at 5 A. M. that she had abandoned the search for additional survivors and was proceeding to San Francisco, 60 miles to the north.

A log of radiograms from the Dodd, intercepted by local stations, tells the dramatic story of the end of the 47-year-old San Juan:

"11:59 P. M.—SOS. We have collided with the San Juan. She is sinking. Do not know extent of our damage. Please rush aid.

"12 midnight—SOS. Stand by!"

"12:02 A. M.—Cannot get position. Lowering lifeboats.

"12:06 A. M.—Standing by.

"12:07 A. M.—Fifty miles north of Pigeon Point. (This position was later corrected).

"12:08 A. M.—SOS. Want coast guard.

"12:15 A. M.—San Juan sinking. She will sink in a few minutes. Now picking up passengers. Near San Juan as possible.

"12:18 A. M.—Standing by to pick up survivors.

"12:26 A. M.—Now getting passengers out of water. One mile ahead. Playing searchlight on sea.

"12:38 A. M.—Terrible sea. Picking up survivors.

"12:41 A. M.—Many are saved.

"12:43 A. M.—The Munami saved two of her lifeboats. They're alongside ready to be hoisted aboard our boat. Out in quest of more people.

"1:50 A. M.—We are not damaged. Our position fifty miles southeast of Pigeon Point. (This position also erroneous).

"1:58 A. M.—Still drifting off Pigeon Point.

"2 A. M.—Taking some more people out of water. Some very weak and exhausted. So far no deaths reported. Position given pretty close.

"2:05 A. M.—Position about 18 miles south Pigeon Point.

"2:30 A. M.—Still standing by.

"5:05 A. M.—Proceeding to San Francisco."

A thick curtain of fog hung over the Pacific and along the shoreline when the wreck occurred. Due to poor visibility, rescue work by the S. C. T. Dodd and McCormick liner Munami was hampered.

A thrilling story of mighty struggle against overwhelming odds was related in the brief radio dispatches that cracked from other ships standing by to the Mackay Federal Radio Station here.

A choppy sea was reported during the early morning hours as sailors in small boats searched the disaster-stricken patch of the Pacific for the passengers of the ill-fated San Juan.

Captain Adolf F. Asplund, 65, true to the traditions of sea-faring men, went down with the San Juan, of which he was the temporary commander.

Going to sea when 12 years of age, Captain Asplund acquired a comfortable fortune and retired three years ago, buying a home in Ingleside Terrace, an exclusive residential section near the Pacific where he lived with his daughter, Carolyn.

The other day, the daughter told the United Press, the White Flyer line called her father and asked him to take command of the old San Juan while the regular captain was on vacation.

Unable to withstand the temptation to put to sea again, he late Thursday took the San Juan out through the heads of Golden Gate—and sailed to disaster.

In all his years before the mast, and later in steam, it was the first accident the veteran Asplund ever experienced.

The radio message telling that Captain Asplund died aboard the San Juan was a terse:

"Asplund down with ship."

His daughter, waiting at home for her good-natured Viking father, was not informed of the message.

"Dad must be all right," she said in

TWO BRICKLAYERS PLUNGE 13 STORIES TO INSTANT DEATH

TRIED HARD TO KILL HIMSELF WHEN DESPONDENT

MINNEAPOLIS MAN, WM. SCRIBNER, 65, LOCKS SELF IN COAL BIN

SETS FIRE TO OLD PAPERS, HITS HIMSELF ON HEAD WITH AX

Minneapolis, Aug. 30.—(U.P.)—Despondent William Scribner, 65, a night watchman, locked himself in his coal bin here today, set fire to a pile of papers and kindling wood, struck himself on the head with an ax and laid down to die.

Mrs. Scribner and her daughter smelled the smoke, put out the fire through the coal chute with a garden hose, then summoned firemen, policemen and doctors.

Scribner, weak from loss of blood, was rushed to general hospital where attendants said he would live.

SHIFTING SANDS REVEAL SKELETON

TRUNK WITH GRUESOME FIND
LOCATED 20 MILES FROM VICTORVILLE, CALIF.

San Bernardino, Cal., Aug. 30.—(U.P.)—Shifting sands in the desert 20 miles from Victorville have revealed a trunk containing a skeleton which deputy sheriffs believed today might be the remains of one of the "murder farm" victims of Gordon Stewart Northcott, now awaiting execution.

The locked trunk with its gruesome contents was found in a section through which Northcott futilely led searching parties after he had confessed to murdering four boys on his farm to hide abuse.

Northcott, apprehended after a sensational chase which extended into Canada, confessed to killing Walter Collins, 10, an unidentified Mexican boy and Lewis and Nelson Winslow, 12 and 9. Deputy Sheriff J. T. Farley, who inspected the trunk where it was found, expressed the opinion that the bones might be those of one of the quartet.

Northcott's trial revealed a horrible story of abuse of the boys, of their detention in a chicken coop and finally of their heartless murder.

Pleads Guilty to Charge of Stealing 175,000 Needles

St. Paul, Aug. 30.—(U.P.)—Roy McLelland, Duluth, today pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing 175,000 needles and was sentenced by Judge J. C. Michael to two to 10 years in Stillwater penitentiary. McLelland said he was intoxicated when he stole the needles from a St. Paul manufacturing company. He also admitted a previous conviction.

an attempt to keep up her confidence.

"I know he is safe."

Two coast guard cutters left San Francisco early today to take up the search for passengers and the crew of the sunken vessel but there was considered to be little chance that additional persons would be found alive.

The cutters were the Shawnee and the Tahoe.

Later reports were that the fog was not so dense and that the sea had calmed down. That will be an aid, it was pointed out, in the search for bodies.

The old San Juan was engaged in cut rate carrier service between San Francisco and Los Angeles and despite its age was generally considered a seaworthy craft for coastal service.

When the tanker struck, however, the ancient timbers in the San Juan seemed to crumple and she went down before lifeboats could be cleared, or other precautions taken, said a radio message received from the San Juan after its SOS calls were answered.

Then the water snuffed the power out, silencing the San Juan radio forever.

It was estimated that the San Juan went to the bottom within five minutes after the crash. The Munami, being nearby, rushed to the scene and launched lifeboats immediately. The Dodd also put out its boats.

Prompt action by these two ships, and the bravery of the sailors who manned the boats, prevented an even more horrible tragedy.

Lady Heath Critically Injured When Her Plane Crashed Through Roof of Building

IRISH AVIATRIX BATTLES FOR LIFE AT CLEVELAND

HER MECHANIC, KIRK, LEAPED TO SAFETY, BUT INJURED SELF SLIGHTLY

EYEWITNESS SAY SHE DROVE TO MISS SMOKESTACK AND HIT BUILDING

By MERTON T. AKERS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Municipal Airport, Cleveland, Aug. 30.—First victim here of the machines man made to fly since the national air races started six days ago, Lady Heath, Irish aviatrix, battled for life today.

Although her condition remained "very critical" Lady Heath regained consciousness today for the first time since she crashed. She was reported fighting tenaciously for life.

As she lay surrounded by physicians, the air show went on. The program is to start an hour earlier today because the many events so fill the afternoon that several have been postponed.

Lady Heath's accident was the first of any consequence at the air races. Four derby fliers were killed as they winged toward the show but with hundreds of airplanes flying all hours of the day and night there had been no crashes at the airport.

Lady Heath's skull was fractured in two places, her body crushed and her head lacerated when the Great Lakes airplane she was trying out preparatory to taking part in another race crashed through the roof of a metal products factory and imbedded itself in the floor.

Erwin Kirk, a mechanic flying with her, leaped to safety but injured himself slightly when he jumped through the hole in the roof to the aid of his pilot.

Kirk could give no explanation of the crash. He said the plane veered toward the roof and he leaped instinctively. Capt. Daniel Glasser, of Chicago, an eye-witness, said Lady Heath swerved to miss a smoke stack and then dove into the roof.

Municipal Airport, Cleveland, Aug. 30.—With Lady Heath fighting tenaciously for life, the national air show went on today.

There was a shadow of gloom over the airport on account of Lady Heath's accident. Her condition was announced as still "very critical" but she had regained consciousness and had a chance to recover.

Precautions were taken to prevent another accident, Lady Mary's having been the first of any consequence since the air races started. Her plane fell through the roof of a factory yesterday.

The field was kept cleared of all planes except those actually taking part in the events under way. At the far side of the airport where air mail and passenger planes come and go,

CONVENTION CONTINUES OVER
TOMORROW, MANY NOT-ABLES TO SPEAK

St. Cloud, Aug. 30.—(U.P.)—The annual convention of the Minnesota Loyal Order of Moose and the Mooseheart Legion was opened here today in a welcome ceremony headed by Mayor James H. Murphy.

The convention will continue through Sunday with such prominent figures as Representative Ray J. Quinlivan; Congressman W. A. Pittenger, Duluth, and James A. Geraghy, Milwaukee, Moose district supervisor, on the speakers' program.

The sessions today were given chiefly to addresses of welcome and responses.

Double Murder Revealed in Woods Near Kansas City

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 30.—(U.P.)—Two bodies, those of a man and a woman, were found in a wooded region near the Cliff drive early today, revealing a double murder. The man had been shot in the head, the woman beat to death with a hammer. The man was identified as Paul O'Dell, 19 years old.

They were allowed to clear the field before others took off.

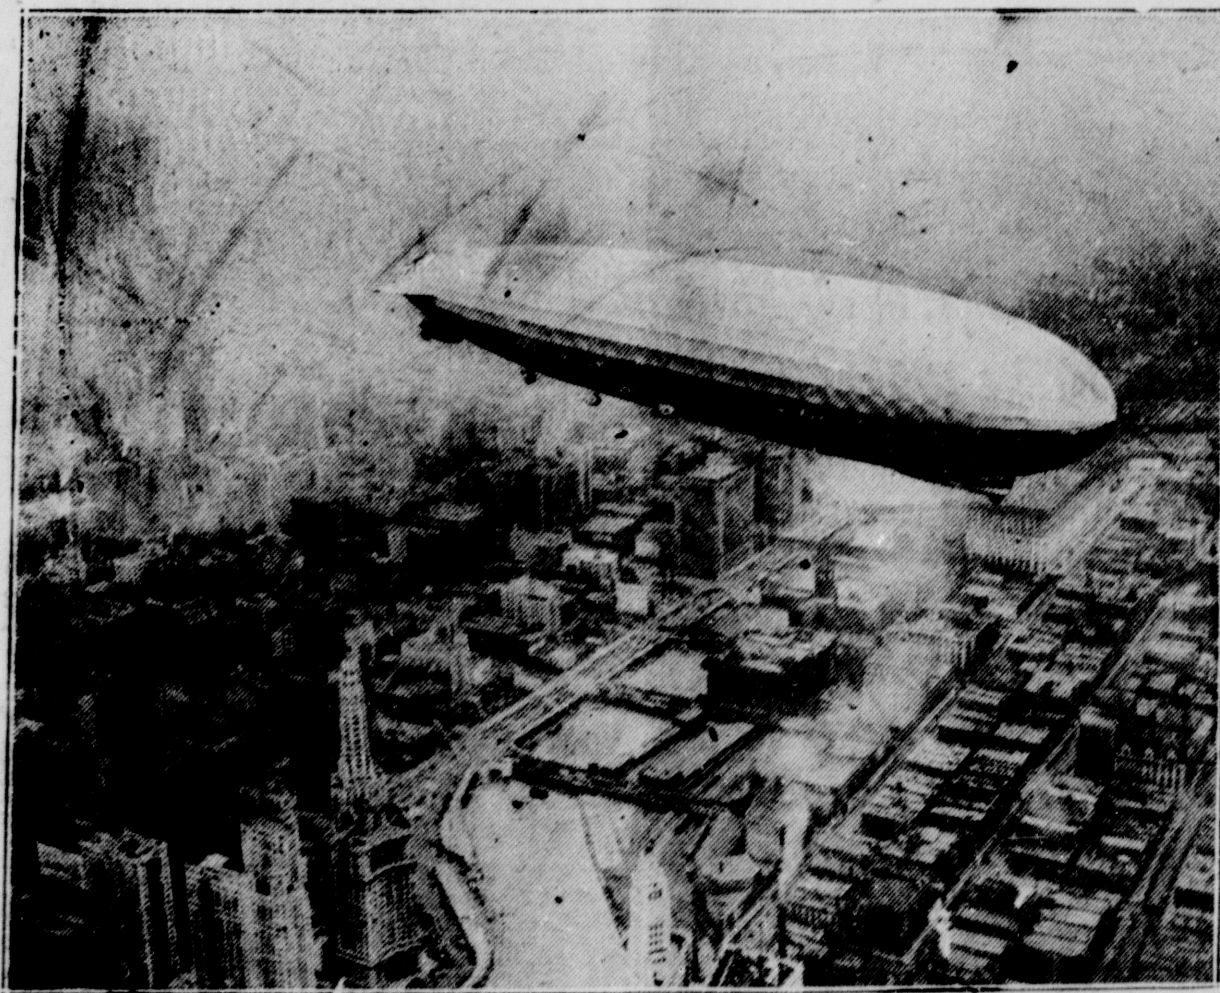

The safety announcement had no more than been made when an accident was averted narrowly. Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, mother of the famous flier, arrived from Detroit in a tri-motored plane.

As she landed, a Great Lakes plane, piloted by Howard Mays, came down and they nearly collided. Mays swerved his plane to avoid a crash and tipped over. He was unhurt. His plane was damaged slightly.

A moment later, Lindbergh arrived from the Herrick estate in a navy plane and met his mother. They kissed and talked quietly. She did not seem shaken after the escape.

To avoid the crowds which swarmed around, Lindbergh bundled his mother, into a plane and took to the air.

MINNESOTA DEATH RATE INCREASES SLIGHTLY IN 1928

St. Paul, Aug. 30.—(U.P.)—The Minnesota death rate increased slightly in 1928, according to census bureau figures received here today.

The increase from 919.1 per 100,000 population in 1927 to 954.3 in 1928 was attributed largely to cerebral hemorrhage, influenza and pneumonia.

Tuberculosis, measles, scarlet fever and typhoid deaths are on the wane, the report revealed.

HALTED ON BICYCLE TOUR OF SYRIAN AREA

AMERICANS ACCOMPANIED BY 15 STUDENTS OF OTHER NATIONALITIES

AMERICAN CONSULATE APPEALS TO BRITISH MILITARY AUTHORITIES

By JACOB SIMON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Jerusalem, Aug. 30.—Fourteen American students of the art school at Haifa, together with 15 students of other nationalities, were reported today to be surrounded by unfriendly Arabs along the Palestine-Syrian border where they were halted during a bicycle tour through Syria.

The American consulate general here appealed to the British military authorities to lend their aid in transporting the boys to safety. It appeared that the boys set out on their expedition before the Arab-Jewish riots broke out here a week ago and knew nothing of the danger which awaited them along the roads.

The rioting continued in several points in spite of the British reinforcements which continued to arrive in Palestine hourly. But the troops seemed to have the situation well in hand and additional forces were being dispatched to every point where new uprisings threatened.

A new outbreak was reported from Acre today and the British immediately rushed a detachment of marines to the city to quell the uprising and to establish a military center there for northern Palestine. A British corporal told the United Press correspondent that British troops killed 12 Arab rioters at a village yesterday when the Arabs attempted to loot and plunder Jewish homes. There were no military casualties.

It was reported from various sources that Bedouins continued to gather at the frontiers in small numbers and that they were encamping themselves. Troops from Haifa were on a steady march to all points which seem to be in danger.

The Kistina colony was reported to have been burned to the ground, it was said, and that Dr. Israil, director of the hospital there, had been killed. The dispatches failed to state when this occurred.

The city of Jerusalem was patrolled by a double guard today as a precautionary measure against a recurrence of the tragic incidents last Friday after the prayers at the mosque of Omar.

The threatened invasion of Palestine by Trans-Jordanians Arabs was believed prevented after a conference between British military authorities and the Emir Abdullah, chief of the tribesmen.

Jerusalem, Aug. 30.—Five Jews were killed and 15 injured seriously in a disturbance at Safad.

The English Shell Petroleum Company's plant at Safad was burned.

Editor's note.—The dispatch from Beirut, in which the number of dead in Palestine is estimated at 1,000 was filed by the regular United Press correspondent in Beirut, on the basis of information received across the border from Palestine. The estimate is not official. The colonial office in London issued an official list yesterday in which the casualties up to Aug. 28 were given as 152 killed and 263 injured.

Mrs. C. A. Lindbergh is to Accompany Husband on Central American Flight

Cleveland, O., Aug. 30.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh will accompany her husband on his flight over Central American jungles to open the new mail route from San Juan, Porto Rico, to Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, next month, Colonel Lindbergh said today. The route of the flight will take the Lindberghs over country that never has been surveyed by white men, according to postal officials.

JEALOUS SUITOR CUTS UP RIVAL

Chicago, Aug. 30.—(U.P.)—Jean Hennes, 21, of St. Paul, Minn., is in the county hospital here today, suffering knife wounds, incurred in a fight with a jealous suitor.

Hennes met a girl in a west side dance hall. He volunteered to escort her home. A few blocks away he was attacked by a man who accused him of "taking his girl."

Hennes will recover physicians said.

TRUCK DRIVER HANGED FOR SLAYING HIS WIFE

ALLEGED SLAYER IS SURRENDERED BY HIS BROTHER

PAUL PETERSON, 27, OF NEILLSVILLE, WIS., ADMITS KILLING TWO RELATIVES

THEN FLED TO FARM OF BROTHER AND THERE ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

Neillsville, Wis., Aug. 30.—(U.P.)—Surrendered by his own brother after an unsuccessful suicide attempt, Paul Peterson, 27, was held in Clark county jail here today on two charges of first degree murder.

Two hours after he had been taken into custody on the farm of his brother, William, near Fairchild, Peterson admitted the slaying of his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Riggs at their farm home near Greenwood.

Peterson had blamed the couple and their daughter, Mrs. David Jones, for the separation from his wife, who recently sued for divorce at Waukegan, Ill., Peterson's home. Riggs and his wife were killed defending Mrs. Jones, who with her husband, had lived with Peterson and his wife at Waukegan.

Peterson escaped from Greenwood after the shootings and had evaded search until his brother, William, notified authorities yesterday that he was hiding in a field on his farm. Sheriff's deputies met no resistance.

COFF LEAVES LAST MAN'S CLUB

FIRING SQUAD CRACKS OUT
FINAL SALUTE TO YOUNGEST MEMBER OF BAND

Stillwater, Minn., Aug. 30.—(U.P.)—The invisible ranks of the Last Man's Club opened here today to receive another comrade as an earthly firing squad cracked out a final salute to John S. Goff, 36, the youngest and cheeriest of that famous band.

Goff, half blind, half deaf, almost helpless, but still the blustering, over-arching Civil war doughboy, heard "taps" blown only for him Tuesday and marched happily off to join his worthy mates.

The passing of the laughable, lovable little veteran left but two tired old soldiers, Charles Lockwood, 87, and Peter Hall, 91, to carry out the club's unusual pact, that one day the "last man" shall drink from a bottle of Burgundy wine a toast to his fallen mates.

"Charles" and "Peter" one still comparatively strong for his years, the other seemingly world-weary, his life's work near done, marched behind the bier of their well-loved "Johnny" calmly and quietly to his little patch of green in Lakeview cemetery.

Few believed that Lockwood and Hall would even attempt to meet again next July 21, their reunion day for the past 44 years, because of "Peter's" fast fading strength.

"I'm an old man," he said at the last reunion, "next year is a long way away and I'm tired. It doesn't make much difference to us now which one of us drinks the toast, I know I won't be disappointed if it is one of the other boys."

Lockwood rarely ever mentioned the wine.

Goff, on the other hand spoke of it often and only a few days before he died he chuckled out "Johnny will open that bottle yet."

The court was informed that Kaluze previously had been convicted in Cloquet on a forgery charge.

YOU WANT MORE THAN TRANSPORTATION

If transportation in a limited sense were all that an automobile could provide, any car would do, and the cheapest would be the best. The difference between the minimum in transportation and the maximum in motoring is exactly what sets the Chrysler-built De Soto Six completely apart from others in its field. It explains why De Soto Six has broken all sales records for a first-year car. The De Soto Six was not designed merely to carry people in passable comfort from one place to another. The qualities that afford De Soto true distinction are all supplementary to its mobility. De Soto Six is capable of such distinctive and versatile performance that nothing less than a demonstration can do it justice. We shall be glad to arrange this demonstration to suit your convenience.

Brainerd Gun Club

YOU cannot ascribe it all to the coming duck shooting and hunters report that ducks are more numerous than in many years past, but it is an acknowledged fact that the Brainerd Gun club is seeing wonderful activity and had 24 men at the traps last night. A week ago 31 faced the traps.

In its heyday of glory the gun club had 93 members and Artie White was president and Harold Kalland was secretary. Industrial conditions in 1922 scattered many of the members and the club membership fell to about 30.

The pastime of trapshooting is again taking firm hold in the community and the officers expect, by next year, to have the membership at the hundred mark.

Brainerd, in the past, has produced some fine marksmen. They include George Trent, Sr., who won the diamond badge and the professional championship of the state so many times he has lost track of the record; Artie White, who also won the diamond badge one time and other trophies; Dr. Roy Williams, who won the state championship on single targets at Breezy Point in 1925; Harold Kalland, who won the all around championship four years straight and has a whole parlorful of cups and other trophies; Edw. Anderson, who won a silver trophy at the Sportsmen's convention at Rocky Point, on Gull Lake.

Captain W. H. Fawcett has always taken a friendly interest in the Brainerd Gun club and has assisted to give publicity in national sports journals and his own magazines. The captain shooting at the Grand American handicap at Dayton, Ohio, this month, broke 95 out of 100, which is very good shooting and put him among the leaders in national trapshooting. Roger, son of the captain, broke 94. With over a thousand shooters present 98 was the high mark.

Membership in the Brainerd Gun club costs only a nominal sum, $1 for the year. Ammunition is sold at only a slight advance above actual cost.

The Holland grounds, where the club has been shooting nine years, are located in Northeast Brainerd and afford an absolutely clear sky line. During the 50th anniversary celebration of Brainerd, the club entertained five of the greatest trapshooters in the world, Frank Troeh of Portland, Ore.; Frank Hughes of Chicago; Mark Arie of Champaign, Ill.; W. G. Warren of Chicago; Phil Miller of Dallas, Texas. They were unanimous in declaring that the grounds were the best they had ever shot on.

The present officers are President Artie White, and Secretary-Treasurer Harold Kalland. The club officers and members are glad to welcome new members into the association and assist in every way possible aspiring shooters who need instruction in the art of trapshooting.

Due to careful management and intelligent cooperation there has never been an accident on the grounds. The equipment is all modern and well installed. The club has three Wonder traps and the trap boys are all experienced and adepts in their work.

Some Nonsensical Demands

THE Warren Sheaf, as referred to by the Long Prairie Leader, calls a halt on some of the nonsensical demands upon the Federal Farm Board in the following appeal:

"If the newly organized Federal Farm Board should listen to all the impractical and unsound recommendations made to it by persons who think they have a panacea for all the farmers' ills, then it would use up the generous federal appropriation of $500,000,000 in less than no time and before long would bankrupt the whole country. Suppose the government should buy up all the surplus wheat, as has been suggested, then the corn farmers, cotton farmers and tobacco growers, potato and fruit raisers, and in fact all who grow crops that do not find a ready sale at profitable prices, would demand the same treatment, and with good reason too. Such a policy would swamp any government. And of all the nonsensical suggestions that have been made, the one to buy up the surplus wheat and dump it in the ocean in order to raise the price, is the most unreasonable. The farm board consists of a very able and intelligent group of men and they have been clothed with great power, but they cannot go against economic laws, no matter how earnestly and sincerely they may wish to help the farmer. Their big job will be to place agriculture on a permanent profitable basis, and not merely for the time being. With the hearty cooperation of all wheat growers and farmers generally, the Federal Farm Board will in due time be able to render a real and permanent service to American agriculture, at least that is what we all hope."

Debt Cancellation

THE solution of the international war debt problem by the simple process of writing it off is again to the fore in the form of an article in an English newspaper inviting the United States to cancel on the condition that all governments concerned follow suit. From the viewpoint of Europe there is much to be said for the plan, but not, perhaps, as much as there seems to be. Our observation and experience of European affairs are not such as to encourage the hope that the governments and peoples of Europe, released from debt, would devote all their relieved resources to objects of peace and the purchase of American commodities. There is useful suggestion, we believe, in what happened when at the Washington conference of 1921 we proposed a general reduction of naval armament. Battleships were in fact limited and money was saved upon that category, but it proved to be a case of what our rivals saved on the peanutta they spent on the damma banan.

What reason have we for hope that if the people of the United States cancel their claims for loans to Europe and assume the burden themselves that the governments so relieved will not take advantage of the relief to increase their armaments or otherwise to advantage themselves in ways far from conducive to our welfare? Our generous sacrifice at the Washington conference brought no response in the way of imitation.—Chicago Tribune.

How to ban bare legs in business is a problem that is agitating Belfast, Ireland, business men. The bare-legged fashion which commenced with girl tennis players and athletes has now spread to typists who with the advent of hot weather have taken up the vogue with enthusiasm to the detriment, it is claimed, for the powers of concentration of male workers in the same office as the bare-legged typists.

Blue Blood And Red

by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

EDDIE REGAN has been persuaded to join a gang of which the "Big Guy" is the leader. Bernice Veressi, a "gang girl," is in love with Eddie, but he becomes disgusted and breaks away. Boarding a freight train, he makes his escape to Virginia, where he meets Marian Thorndike. Penfield Paradine, Southern aristocrat, suffers from a stroke, and Marian and Eddie revive him. Eddie finds shelter under Paradine's roof, and while Eddie and he are talking, Paradine suffers a relapse.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAP. VII.
TWILIGHT came and darkened into night. Eddie ate supper from a tray Tobe brought him and went to bed in a square, high-ceilinged room. Tobe, throughout the night, dozed close to his master's bed. Strange sounds—noises that did not exist in New York—kept Eddie awake for hours, it seemed.

There was the distant baying of hounds in the woods, the chirping of an occasional night bird, the rustle of wind in the trees, the disconsolate howling of a cow. Sometimes he imagined the house creaked. Through an open window the night air was a gentle breeze, laden with sweetness, but it was alien to his nostrils.

In the semi-darkness the furniture of the room bulked large and ghostly; the carved posts at the foot of his bed were motionless sentinels; there was a vague gleam on a mahogany highboy.

It was strange that his past life, so close to him in the point of actual time, had receded so distantly in importance. The schemes of the gang, his old thrills and expectations, began to lose all value. The girl, Bernice Veressi, came before him vividly and his mind reproduced her warm, compelling vitality but, oddly, there was no lure, no desire, in the picture.

When morning came his abundantly youthful strength had been restored. He awoke thinking about Marian Thorndike and she was in his mind like impalpable, powdered gold. With the beginning of day, Eddie found it was not difficult to accommodate himself to the new routine of life.

Tobe prepared breakfast; Eddie sat in Penfield Paradine's room and regretted that his host was unable to talk connectedly. After luncheon, the old man fell into a light sleep and Eddie went downstairs. He found a book about the life of Robert E. Lee and read some of it with detached interest. It was hard for him not to watch the tall old clock in the hall.

With every tick of the mechanism the time narrowed until he should again see Marian Thorndike. At three o'clock he began to be desperately fearful she would not come. At four o'clock she arrived. She went upstairs immediately; her interest in Eddie, apparently, was negligible. While she was upstairs he waited impatiently for her return.

He met her coming down at the foot of the stairs and they went into the living-room.

"I don't know what more could be done for him than is being done," she said seriously. "Do you intend to stay here?"

"For a while—till he gets better, or worse."

"It's a shame that a man of his calibre should die alone without any relatives around—or any men folks to take care of his house," Marian declared. "Of course, it's no affair of mine, but in common decency someone should look after him. It isn't weren't that he and my father were such high-tempered enemies I could come over with my mother—but father would raise Old Nick."

"You slipped off to come here?" Eddie asked.

The girl nodded. "You, being from the North, can't realize what silly, bitter ideas these old people cling to."

But she was mistaken—Eddie knew all about bitter feuds and he realized, philosophically, that human nature might be the same all over the world.

"I don't know anything about the hard feelings between your father and Mr. Paradine," he told her, "but you can be certain that the old colored man upstairs is as good as any trained nurse on earth. I'll do all I can myself, and with you coming every day to look things over—" He hesitated and stopped speaking.

There was a fear that he had ventured in too far, had become too personal. Marian Thorndike looked at him with clear eyes.

"What a nerve I've got," he exclaimed.

"I don't know who you are, or where you came from," she said, steadily. "It's the funniest thing I ever heard of—the way you just sort of dropped into the house and started living here. I'd like to know how it all came about."

Eddie gave her a sketchy explanation of his presence, omitting the sinister background of his New York life. He told her he was tired of the city and wanted to try his luck somewhere, anywhere, in the country. He was afraid lest she think him an unfit person and he hoped, desperately, that she would not take any prejudice against him or regard him suspiciously. But she listened to his story inattentively, and he felt a chilling sensation that she was really taking little notice of him.

"What this house needs is a woman to look after it," she said with a feminine irritation. "Everything is topsy-turvy from cellar to attic. I don't suppose the furniture has been really dusted in years."

She walked to the window and touched a pane with the tip of her finger. "Somebody certainly ought to wash these windows."

She was dressed in her riding-clothes and just to be in the same room with her elevated his spirits until he felt as though he were inflated with some ethereal gas.

At one moment he was floating with a kind of excited joy and the next instant all the pleasure would suddenly drain out of his heart. He realized how crude he was, how vile had been his background. The gulf between them yawned wide and impassable.

When Marian had gone the effect of her presence lingered in every nerve fibre of Eddie Regan; he felt as though he had absorbed some powerful tonic.

No longer did the home and farm of Penfield Paradine seem bleak and unattractive; every weed and tree, every chair in the house and every chicken around the barn was bound to him by the spell that had grown upon him. A spreading affection, an awakening, dawned in his mind and he thirsted to identify himself somehow with the life which he so little understood—the kind of life that was, obscurely, the life of Marian Thorndike.

From the back porch Tobe pointed out the limits of the forty acres, and Eddie tramped over it all. The larger part of the land was in pine timber but there were a few scantily cultivated fields and a vegetable garden.

The orchard was bearing fruit and a flock of chickens cackled industriously. Strawberries were ripe in rows and a yellow cow loitered in a pasture. Back of the big house Eddie found a flower garden close to the brick wall and he wandered down the path amid flowering shrubs that were tangled and wild from neglect. Bees droned about, but he had no fear of them and was not stung.

He saw a tiny lizard on the garden wall—the first he had ever seen—and he was startled and amused at the speed with which it fled at his approach. There was a rickety bench by a rose bush and he sat down, surrounded by fragrance.

Everything—everything—reminded him of Marian Thorndike: the blue of her eyes, the gold of her hair, the delicate magnificence of her carriage. But most of all he was poignantly aware of an inner purity that seemed to belong to her exclusively—a crystallized integrity, delicately fired with golden lights.

He could feel himself almost literally shaking loose from his old associations—could feel the beginning glow of overpowering hope that would mysteriously amalgamate with a new, undefiled habit of living.

"What a nerve I've got!" he ejaculated under his breath. "What a nerve!"

ABOUT THE COUNTY FAIR

Dear Editor:

Of course you realize that it costs real money to stage a county fair. Entertainment comes high, but it is the thing that draws the crowds. Now in line with the implication of your recent editorial, don't you think it would be a good thing to hold the county fair at Cross Lake. I am told that the rain which fell over the larger part of the county Saturday afternoon and evening and cut fair attendance and reduced revenues did not descend at Cross Lake. Manifestly, if there is merit to the argument of your editorial that the fair should be held in Brainerd because the north part of the county suffered a dry season, then it might be advisable to move the fair to Cross Lake where it does not rain the final day of the fair.

But why not be sensible and take the view that if crops are better in some parts of the county than others, those favored sections might well have exhibited at the fair at Pequot for the good of the county as a whole. With Crow Wing county's fine roads, distance is no longer a barrier, as the attendance of a hundred boys and girls interested in club work from all parts of the county shows.

Since the county fair is held at Pequot and seems to be destined to be held there for some time at least, it would seem that as a matter of county loyalty if nothing else it should be the aim of everyone in the county to make it the best fair possible. Hundreds of tourists receive their impressions of the county from the fair.

Your editorial charges that farmers favored by the weather failed to see the opportunity, but as an argument for moving the fair it has little to commend it.

BENN A. WAGNER,
Pequot.

A New Door needed on the Back Porch

The Back Door looks a little neglected, doesn't it? For one thing, the screening has rusted and fallen away in spots. Doesn't keep the flies out. And the delivery boys and the ice man have soiled the woodwork. It does look mussy. It isn't much of a job to put in new netting and to paint the main door and the frame of the other. Let's get busy. What do you say?

AUTHORITIES FACE ODDS IN MANHUNT

Despite Few Clues Efforts Are Doubled in Search of Bank Bandits

TIRE MARKS FOLLOWED

All Localities in State Join in Look-out for Bandit Trio

Despite the fact that authorities are working with no tangible clues as to the whereabouts of the three bandits who looted the Farmers State bank of Pequot Wednesday of more than $9,000 in cash, Liberty bonds and diamond rings, the manhunt was widened today to take in every locality of the state, the larger cities of Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth to the small out of the way places in northern Minnesota bordering on the Canadian line.

Sheriff Claus A. Theorin has notified points west into the Dakotas while Fargo police are keeping a watch for the bandits there. Chicago police headquarters have been notified by telegram to look for the bandits in the underworld there.

While authorities are confident "the job was pulled" by amateurs, bank employees will be asked to look over the entire rogues' gallery of pictures in the sheriff's office this afternoon for the purpose of possible identification.

Aided by the tire tread marks of the bandit car a posse continued today to search that country around Backus and Park Rapids. The car was followed to near Backus over the used country roads by means of the tire marks.

Sheriff Theorin frankly admitted today that the odds were against the law enforcement officers but this will not deter them in their vigilance to capture the bandits, he said. He believes the holdup men operated from a stolen car.

The officers are handicapped by lack of accurate description of the men, failure to learn the license number of the car or from what state it was issued.

A call from a farmer northeast of Brainerd that a car bearing the description of the bandit car was seen heading to a lake cottage caused Sheriff Theorin to send two deputies there yesterday afternoon to investigate. They returned with the report that the occupants of the car were two prominent elderly couples from Minneapolis.

A search was being made today in the territory of Virginia and Eveleth and police at Detroit Lakes have joined in the hunt.

The families represented were Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Boobar and son George of Nary, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Boobar of Fair Haven, Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Gray and children of South Haven, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hess, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Hess and son, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gattie and two sons, and Mr. and Mrs. Truman Easton all of Brainerd, Mrs. Pearl Bliler and two children of Bemidji, Mrs. P. J. Reagan and three children, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Steevers, and Mrs. Mabel Brennan of Minneapolis, Mrs. H. G. Doble and two children, and Mrs. Chas Eiden and two children of St. Paul, Mr. and Mrs. P. T. Boobar and two children of Paynesville, Mr. and Mrs. Don Frick and two children of Glenwood, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Gilkinson and son, Dr. Andrew Gilkinson and nephew of Osakis, Howard Gilkinson of Yankton, S. D., Mrs. Ralph Partridge of Kent, Wash., and Mrs. James Hinton and children of Lake Itasca.

A dinner was served, after which Frank and Elmer Boobar gave short talks in which they told many interesting things that had happened during their pioneer days in Minnesota. Dr. Gilkinson also gave some interesting remarks. It was decided by a unanimous vote to hold the reunion next year in Fair Haven, the home for over 50 years of the grandparents, Calvin and Eliza Boobar.
